The Libbey Story

Since 1818, Libbey has been at the forefront of artistry and innovation in glassmaking.

From their roots in Toledo, Ohio to their place as a worldwide tabletop leader, they continue to empower sommeliers and mixologists to craft moments that matter with beautiful and durable glassware products.

The Beginning

Libbey hails from East Cambridge, Massachusetts, home of the New England Glass Company, which was founded in 1818.

In 1888, Edward Drummond Libbey, son of the first corporate owner, William moved the company to Toledo, Ohio transforming the city in to 'The Glass City' whilst also helping to establish the Toledo Museum of Art.

This is where the Libbey main manufacturing plant has remained to this day.

A History of Firsts

As a pioneer of the glassmaking industry, Libbey is proud to own a number of 'Firsts' :

First to automatically produce lightbulbs

First to develop machine blown glass

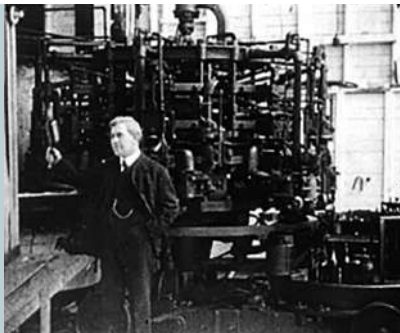

First to develop one piece press and blown stemware

A Legacy of Innovation

Technology has always been at the forefront of the Libbey mission and they continue to lead the way in innovation.

With multiple international manufacturing sites they continue to innovate and create products with a leading edge for the global hospitality market.

The DesignLab in Monterrey, Mexico is raising the standard for beautiful, functional design.
